

Dr. Mike R. Johnston is an Officer of the New Zealand Order of Merit for services in Geological Science and History. In his long career as a geologist at DSIR and GNS, he has contributed to understanding the geology of New Zealand through field work, geological mapping, and reconstructions of tectono-stratigraphy of terranes. He is author of numerous scientific publications and books on New Zealand geology, geologists, mining history, early European exploration of New Zealand and Nelson history. He lives in Nelson and works actively as a geology consultant.